

SEVEN FOR ONE.

A Wholesale Lynching Takes Place in a Georgia Town.

Seven Blacks are Killed for Murdering a White Man.

A RACE WAR LIKELY.

Armed Whites and Blacks Are Ready to Clash.

QUINMAN, Ga., Dec. 24.—The lives of seven negroes have been taken in revenge for that of one white man, and unless all signs fail utterly many more lives are in jeopardy.

Two bodies of determined men, between 400 and 500 in all, every man being heavily armed and each body about equal in numerical strength to the other, separated by less than a mile of country and liable to clash at any moment, that is the spectacle presented in Brooks county.

One body is made up of stern, determined white men, bent on revenge for the brutal murder of one of the best citizens of this county, the other is made up of negroes—terror-stricken and fearful lest they or their families be made the objects of the same fate as has already befallen seven of their number and ready to defend themselves from such fate as well as they may be able.

On Thursday Mr. Joseph Isom, one of Brooks county's most prosperous farmers and best citizens, was murdered by a party of negroes. It leaked out that the killing of Isom was a part of a plot to kill all the whites who were in the posse which a few weeks ago arrested Jesse Jeffers for the killing of Mr. T. Mouliden. When it developed that the same gang of negroes had sworn to kill other white men the whites gathered together as if by one accord and the work of death and destruction began.

If the seven who are dead, the names of only four could be obtained when a reporter visited the scene last evening. Every cross road was found picketed with sentinels and every man in the county is armed to the teeth. When one of these race excitements occur, terror rules in the homes of whites as well as blacks.

There are probably five hundred men under arms, covering an area of about five square miles. About a mile and a half from the home of the Isoms were about 300 whites all well armed and breathing all sorts of vengeance. A mile further was a crowd of negroes of about the same size armed with Winchester rifles, pistols, axes, clubs and every available weapon, waiting for the whites to attack them. They are entrenched in and around a lot of negro cabins in the midst of a thick grove and the latest information is that the whites are advancing on them from two sides.

Sam Taylor, Eli Frazer, Sam Pike and Henry Shepard are four negroes known to have been killed. It is understood that Waverly Pike, Jim McCall and a negro named Herring were probably the others.

Details of the killing of the seven negroes are very meagre. Taylor, Frazer, Pike and Shepard were together about sunset Saturday night. They were regarded as four of the ringleaders of the conspiracy to kill and burn, and were being especially sought for. A half dozen whites, one of whom is said to have been Isom's brother-in-law, came upon them and ordered them to submit to arrest. One of the negroes answered with a shot that struck one of the whites, and the four blacks were shot in their tracks. The other three men were caught one at a time.

The killing of Isom occurred in the public road not far from his home, and the circumstances attending it seem to throw doubt on the conspiracy theory, which was current yesterday, and while in town had some words with Waverly Pike, a negro living in the neighborhood. Apparently everything was smoothed over when he left for home. After arriving there he started with Henry Timmon, his brother-in-law, for Captain Timmon's home, about half a mile from Isom's. They met four negroes, two on horseback and two in a wagon. Pike and West McCall were on horseback and the two Herring boys were in the wagon. They came near riding over Isom, who remonstrated. He said: "Look out; don't run over me," and had stepped out of the way. Just then Pike drew a pistol and, without a word, fired. The bullet pierced Isom's heart. Pike and McCall fired three shots each at the prostrate body of Isom. Then they broke for their horses. Pike made his escape, but McCall and the Herring boys were arrested and are in jail.

BILL COOK IS WAITING.

He Invites Marshal McAllister to Call and See Him—Bill Ryder Dead.

MUSKOGEE, Ind. Tex., Dec. 24.—Yesterday afternoon about 5 o'clock a courier from the Cook gang rode into Muskogee and delivered the following message to Marshal McAllister from Bill Cook:

"Uncle Jim: I am in camp with my men four miles north of the Arkansas bridge and we are ready for any kind of fun you and your deputies will suggest. We will remain in our present quarters a day or more and if you decide to pay us a call, ride right in without knocking. We know you and your force. Our spy told us that you tried to get your deputies out after us yesterday morning shortly after you heard about an 'harrowing' of our horse, but failed. Take your time to get up a posse; we will be near your town for some time yet."

Marshal McAllister ordered all of his available deputies to report at his office at once, but some of them refused to go out again until they were reimbursed for the money spent on former trips.

Buss Luck, Tom Root, Jim Reed and two others robbed the express office at Nowata last night, securing $95.

At 10:30 o'clock last night, William Ryder, one of the Cook gang, was killed in a dive in the northern part of town by confederates.

WRONG MAN SHOT.

Dangerously Wounded by Being Mistaken for a Burglar.

EMPORIA, Kan., Dec. 24.—The depot at Emporia was robbed last night while S. A. Pearmill, the agent, was at supper. The robbers, after gaining admission, broke open the money drawer and attempted to carry it and its contents, about $50, away. A posse was at once organized and a vigorous hunt inaugurated, during which Charles Kirch, one of the posse, discovered a man attempting to hide in the weeds. Kirch stepped forward and asked who he was, but no answer was given and the man attempted to crawl away. Then Kirch drew his revolver and shot and the man fell. He proved to be Julius Brew. He was shot in the back of the head and is dangerously hurt. Brew is a blacksmith and explains his queer actions by asserting that he was out watching for parties who had been destroying his fences and supposed Kirch one of the thieves.

PEACE NEGOTIATIONS.

They Are a Fruitful Theme of Discussion in the Japanese Newspapers.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 24.—Recent newspaper mail advices received here from Japan show that the question of the terms of peace that Japan will demand from China is a fruitful subject of discussion by the native press. Opinions, however, differ regarding these terms, and while some journals condemn others are more specific in their demands than usual. One paper asserts that Formosa, so important from a commercial and military point of view, must at all events be taken. After detailing what an immense expenditure must be incurred by Japan in supporting Corea and protecting Japanese interests in the north of China following the war, the paper declares that Formosa will have to be annexed as a resource from which to draw receipts at least equal to the prospective expenditures. Another paper enters a strong protest against the claims advanced that China must surrender territory entirely out of proportion to the objects for which the war was undertaken. Assuming that the war is practically over, the Japanese are already discussing Japan's prospects thereafter. Mr. Kanekow, the vice minister of state for agriculture and commerce, has been looking into the history of the United States after the great civil war and that of Germany after the Franco-Prussian war, in light of the present situation of the Noshomusho has been holding consultations about the matter for some time, but the investigations are far from concluded. Various ministers are personally of the opinion that the extension of facilities for direct exportation is of the greatest importance.

A Japanese paper gives a summary of the losses of the Japanese and Chinese armies up to November 3, exclusive of the battles of Fung Wang Chang, Kin Chan, Tallienwan and at Port Arthur. This shows that the Japanese lost about 320 killed and 530 wounded, while the Chinese lost 4,000 killed and 4,500 wounded, and 1,500 of them were made captive.

The Japanese have also taken 225 cannons, besides many other arms, 42,000,000 cartridges, enough to equip an ammunition train for a month's firing with 20,000 rifles; 333 banners have been taken, 3,400 tents, 1,000 horses, 3,000,000 taels' worth of gold and silver, 11,905 amie coins, 2,413 koku of rice, 5,755 koku of unhusked rice, and, in addition, sufficient food to last an army of 20,000 men three days. The Chinese have lost thirteen vessels, a torpedo boat, five men-of-war and one of their war vessels captured, which makes a total tonnage of 9,850 tons. The number killed and wounded on the Japanese side at Port Arthur is estimated at over 400, while the enemy's loss is estimated at 9,000.

A HORRIBLE TRAGEDY.

A Drunken Brute Kills His Steeping Wife and Two Children.

VANCOUVER, B. C., Dec. 24.—The most horrible tragedy ever perpetrated in this city occurred here yesterday morning resulting in the death of two of not three persons. George Frederick Ashford, a laborer in the employ of the Canadian Pacific railroad, for some time past has been drinking heavily. He returned home late last night and going upstairs he woke his wife, telling her that her end had come, and before she was half a wake she shot her in the head, then the little 8-year-old Violet was killed in a similar manner; 9-year-old Mildred was the next one shot. The two boys were awakened by the shooting and escaped, giving the alarm to the neighbors. The fiend made his escape in the direction of Westminster. Seeing a car approaching he threw himself in front of it, but the motorman pulled up in time to rescue him, handing him over to the police.

BEHRING SEA AWARDS.

Congressman Hitt Declares That They Are Exceedingly Excessive.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 24.—Secretary Gresham's communication to congress relative to paying $425,000 for Behring sea seizures is occasioning much discussion among those who have been giving attention to the subject. Representative Hitt of Illinois, who introduced the resolution calling for the information, is not yet satisfied that the United States should pay the lump sum of $425,000 for the seizures. He says the positive evidence already adduced shows this amount to be extremely excessive.

Mr. Hitt points out that the original claims, as filed, foot up to $430,000, which is little more than the amount of the proposed compromise. Of this $430,000 Mr. Hitt says, $157,000 is for "probable earnings," "estimated catch," etc. That is, the ships claim large damages for what they might have earned if they had not been seized, so that three-fourths of their claim is for prospective or remote damages, and only one-fourth for damages actually sustained. Mr. Hitt says this theory of prospective damages was expressly repudiated before the famous Alabama awards commission. It was then held that the United States could not recover for what a number of American ships might have done if they had not been seized. The congressman says this precedent and others settles the principle of international law—that remote damages cannot be collected.

It is also shown that of the eighteen ships claiming damages, ten were American ships. Some of the American sealers were flying the British flag merely for the sake of avoiding detection. Mr. Hitt argues that it is not for Great Britain to collect alleged damages to American ships. The claims of these American ships are included in the settlement of $425,000, although Mr. Hitt says the United States should deal with its own ships in its own way, and not through Great Britain as an intermediary.

After deducting the $157,000 for "probable earnings" and further deducting the claims of the ten American ships, Mr. Hitt holds there is very little left of the original claim, and that $425,000 is far in excess of what it ought to be.

LATEST FROM THE LIARS' CLUB

Three Indigestible Yarns Told by Its Most Veracious Members.

In a Virginia forest the other day a very large tree was cut down, near the heart of which was found a lock of hair, or rather two, intertwined of darker and lighter meshes. By carefully splitting the wood the initials "I. S." and "P. P." were discovered, faintly legible, in what must have been the bark several hundred years ago. By carefully counting the rings which covered the initials they were found to support the theory that the mystic letters stand for I-o-h-n, or "John Smith" and "Pocahontas Powhatan," whose locks of hair had been in some romantic mood intrusted to the keeping of the cleft bark.

Not content with slaughtering wild ducks in the usual method, Henry Jones of Cumbuck, procured a Gatling gun and loaded the cartridges with bird shot. Concealing himself, he waited until a large flock approached him at great speed with a favoring wind. When they had nearly reached him he opened fire. The destruction was terrible, but such was the impetus of the birds and the force of the wind that almost the entire flock which he had slaughtered flopped dying upon his hiding place, and beneath their mangled bodies Jones perished miserably by retributive suffocation.

A lady in Thomaston, Me., has a cat—Fanny—which had kittens. Hearing her mistress remark that the kittens must all be drowned Fanny removed them one day to a safe hiding place. After a day or two she brought them back to the mistress with an air of triumph. It was seen that she had with teeth and claws torn to pieces an old canvas and cork life-preserver and had fastened a piece of cork around each kitten's neck. Moved to pity by the sight, the mistress said: "Fanny, not one of your kittens shall ever be hurt." At this the intelligent mother took off the bits of cork and went to sleep in perfect confidence.

THE MAID OF HONOR.

A Tiresome Office, Which, However, Is Always Eagerly Accepted.

The English queen has no difficulty in supplying vacancies in the ranks of the young women she selects to be her companions. They are always the daughters of peers, who, if not themselves connected with the royal household, are personal friends of the queen. A letter is sent to the parents of the young woman selected, requesting the favor of her attendance at court, and the request is never refused. The social cachet is absolute, the salary is $1,500 a year and, though existence is dull in court circles, it is endurable in the light of its ulterior advantages. When an honorable miss or lady somebody arrives for her first "wait," she receives at once her badge as maid of honor. This is a miniature picture of the queen set in brilliants, which she wears hung from a ribbon. Her duties are not severe—there would be less ennui, probably, if there were more to do—and consist chiefly in being on hand if wanted. Just before the dinner hour the maid of honor in waiting stands in the corridor outside the queen's private apartments to receive her as she comes out. She carries a bouquet which, on entering the dining room, she lays beside the queen's plate. Her place at this meal is next to the gentleman on the queen's right hand, unless royal guests are present, when she is differently placed. After dinner, unless otherwise commanded, she retires to her own pretty apartments, but must be ready to answer a summons at any moment to go to the drawing room and read, sing, play the piano or take a hand at cards. The queen, by the way, is fond of cards, and a small stake is always played for. Nor will the queen touch any but freshly coined money, so such members of the household as play with her have to be provided with coin that has never been in circulation.

Depths of Feeling in Italian.

Campanini and Annie Louise Cary were singing in opera together one night years ago, and the great tenor met with a distressing accident just as it was time for him to make his entrance. But he was equal to the situation. With a look that perfectly realized the feelings of the hero he was impersonating, he sang in Italian and in his most impassioned tones, "Miss Cary, I have torn my trousers; what shall I do?" In beautiful contrast to tones, in the purest Italian, Miss Cary promptly sang, "Oh, poor fellow! don't turn around." And then Campanini sang like one inspired, and Miss Cary with charming tact plucked up the bouquets.

No Incompatibility.

In a suit for separation, counsel for the plaintiff pleaded, among other reasons, incompatibility of temperament. He depicted the character of the husband as "brutal, violent, and passionate." The husband's advocate rose in his turn, and described the wife as "spiteful, short-tempered and sulky." "Pardon me," interrupted the judge, addressing both limbs of the law; "I can not see, gentlemen, where the incompatibility of temperament comes in."

When They Might Cut Deep.

The late Professor Henry Morley once told his class in University college, London, that it was possible to fix the date of a certain writer pretty exactly from an inscription carved with a knife on a school desk. "Now," said the genial professor to his hearers, "I don't want you to begin to carve your names on these desks; but if any of you know that you will become famous you may cut them as deeply as you like."

A NARROW ESCAPE!

How it Happened.

The following remarkable event in a lady's life will interest the reader: "For a long time I had a terrible pain at my heart, which fluttered almost incessantly. I had no appetite and could not sleep. I would be compelled to sit up in bed and belch gas from my stomach until I thought every minute would be my last. There was a feeling of oppression about my heart, and I was afraid to draw a full breath. I could not sleep a room without sitting down and reading, but, thank God, by the help of New Heart Cure all that is past and I feel like another woman. Before using the New Heart Cure I had taken different so-called remedies and been treated by doctors without any benefit until I was both discouraged and disgusted. My husband bought me a bottle of Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure, and an hour after I began to feel better. It is as if I now have a splendid appetite and sleep well. I weighed 110 pounds when I began taking the remedy, and now I weigh 140. Its effect in my case has been truly marvelous. It far surpasses any other medicine I have ever taken, or any benefit I ever received from physicians."—Mrs. Harry Starr, Pontiac, Pa., October 11, 1902.
